Redesigned and developed a travel booking website that resulted in a 70% increase in booking inquiries ,lower early drop off by 34% and increase conversion by 14% by combining UX decisions with Google Ads analytics and user behavior insights.

- Analyzed Google Ads performance, inquiry patterns, and regional audience behavior to identify conversion gaps and user drop-off points.
- Discovered that 90%+ users were visiting through mobile devices, leading to a mobile-first UX strategy.
- Reduced cognitive overload by restructuring travel packages into categorized sub-package journeys based on user intent.
- Designed sitelink-driven navigation flows to help high-intent users directly reach relevant package categories.
- Improved booking conversion through better information hierarchy, filters, breadcrumbs, and conversion-focused pricing presentation.
- Developed and deployed the final responsive website while continuously tracking ad performance, clicks, inquiries, and user engagement metrics.

About Me

I started my journey as a Flutter developer, building real-world applications and understanding how products work beyond just interfaces. Over time, I realized that successful products are not only built well — they are designed with clarity, intention, and user understanding. This curiosity led me into UI/UX design, where I now focus on solving real problems, simplifying complexity, and creating intuitive experiences backed by analytics, business goals, and user behavior insights. Today, I combine development knowledge with design thinking to build products that balance both user satisfaction and business impact.
